World Environment Day

On June 5, in honour of World Environment Day, the NCC Unit of T.S. Negi Government College, Reckong Peo, organised a series of awareness and action-oriented initiatives that underscored the cadets' commitment to ecological stewardship.

The programme began with the NCC cadets reciting an environmental pledge, committing themselves to sustainable habits—such as reducing plastic usage, conserving water, and maintaining cleanliness—mirroring the values instilled by their training

. Following the pledge, the cadets conducted a mass plantation drive: saplings of native species like deodar and medicinal plants were planted across the campus and surrounding forest land—aligning with the college's eco-friendly mission, which often involves tree-planting through

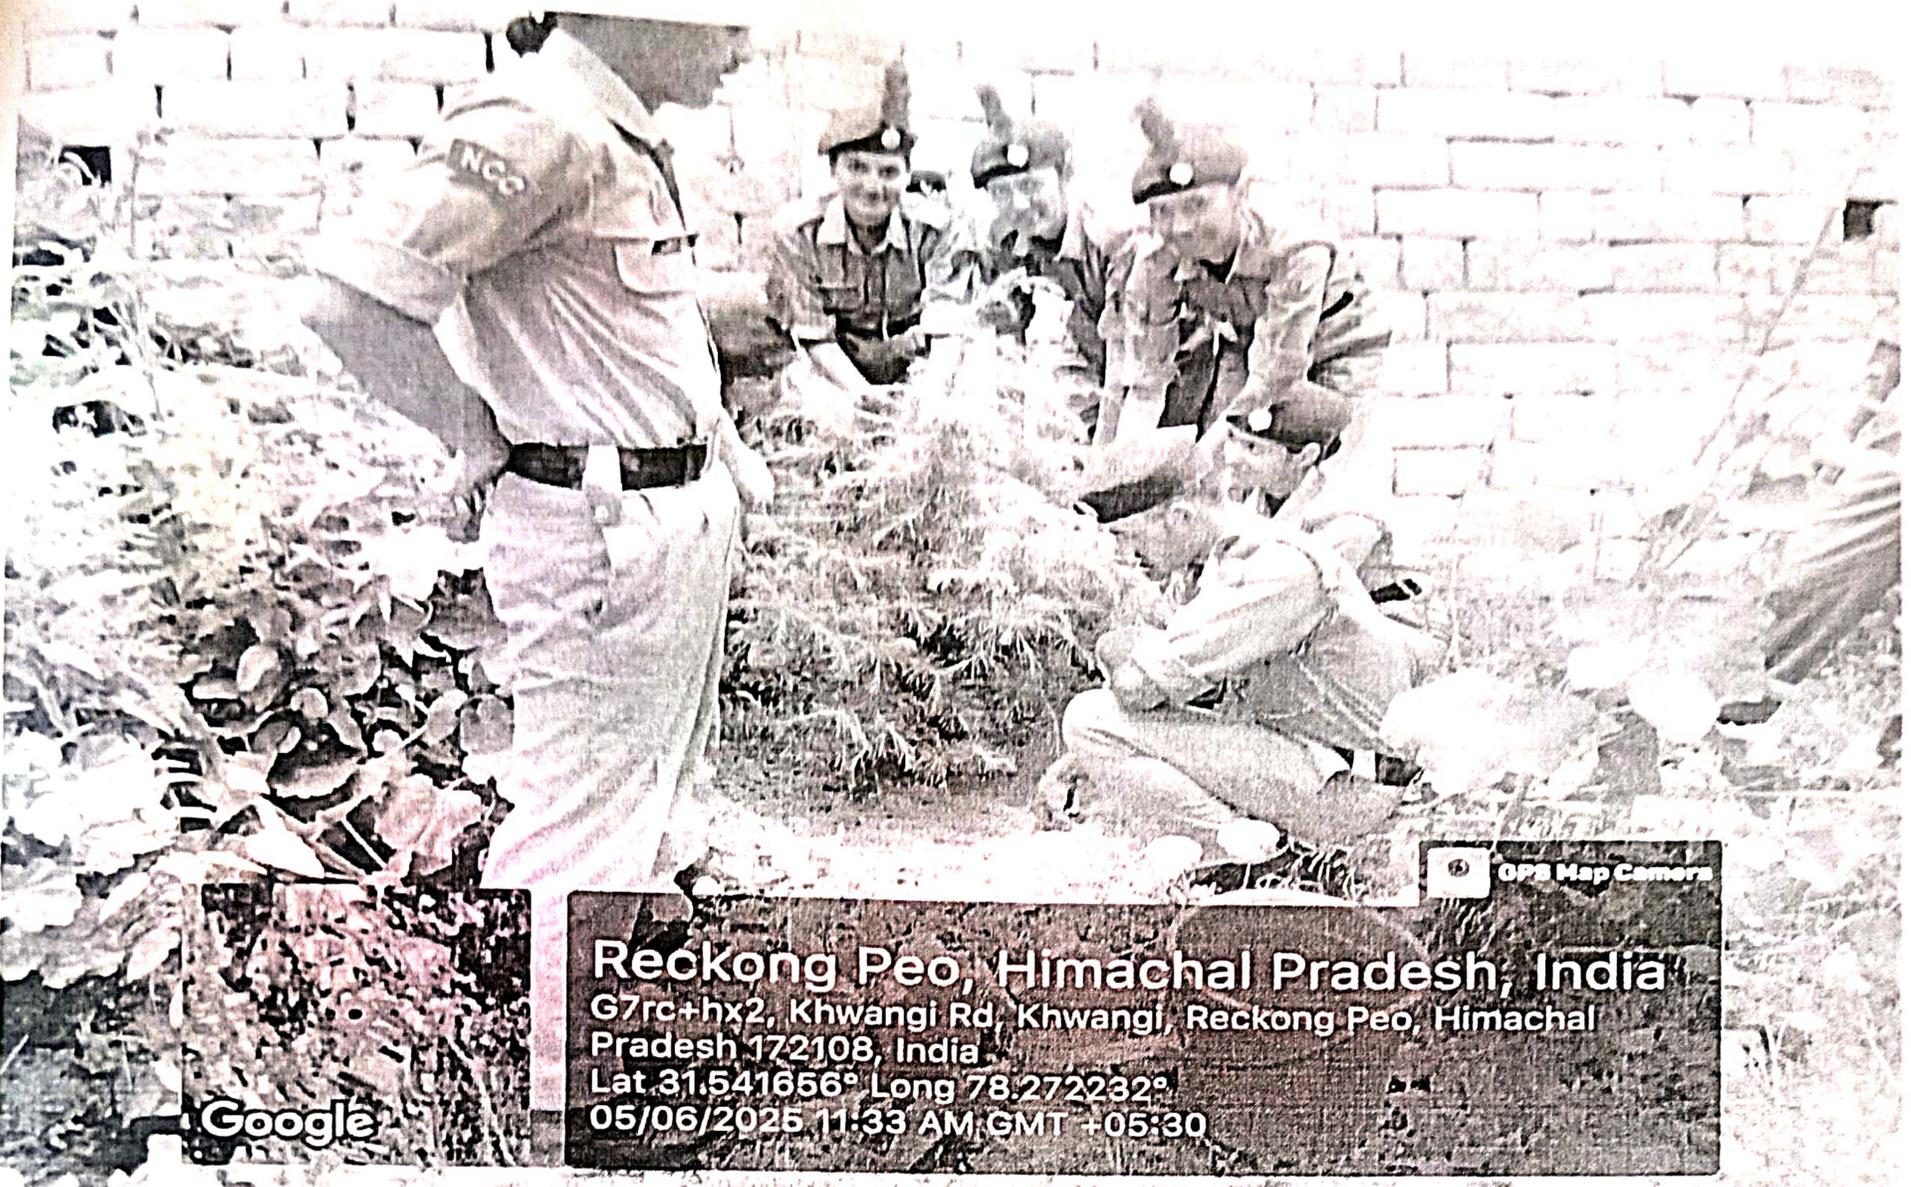

Beyond planting, the cadets spearheaded a cleanliness rally and “best out of waste” awareness activity around Reckong Peo town. They collected litter near the bus stand and market, reinforcing the fragile Himalayan environment's need for protection . Simultaneously, the cadets distributed cloth bags to local shopkeepers, actively promoting the transition from single-use plastics to eco-friendly alternatives

To further engage with the community, the NCC Unit created and exhibited posters and slogan banners around campus and public spaces—reinforcing environmental messages and visually educating passersby about reforestation, waste management, and sustainable practices.

The event concluded with a brief social media outreach campaign. Photos of plantation efforts, cleanliness drives, and cadets holding awareness placards were shared online to amplify the impact and encourage eco-action beyond the immediate vicinity.

Through this multifaceted celebration, the NCC Unit not only planted trees but also sowed seeds of environmental consciousness—demonstrating youth-led, disciplined, community-centric action that harmonises with the college's broader mission of fostering sustainability and civic responsibility.
