STUDENT FEEDBACK ANALYSIS REPORT (YEAR 2024-25) (THAKUR SEN NEGI GOVT.COLLEGE, RECKONG PEO)

The Student Satisfaction Survey for the academic session 2024-25 was conducted by Thakur Sen Negi Government College, Reckong Peo to assess students' experiences regarding academic guidance, teaching-learning processes, infrastructural facilities, house tests, workshops, co-curricular activities and seminars, College Library and overall institutional support. A total of 64-65 responses were received across various parameters. Feedback was collected from students across all departments through a structured questionnaire based on a 2-point rating scale (Yes, No). The responses were received through Google Form containing 13 structured questions designed to assess key areas of academic and institutional performance, ensuring participation from a majority of enrolled students with an attendance record of 80% and above. The consolidated analysis is presented below.

A large majority of students (76.9%) confirmed that they were guided by teachers while selecting programmes and subjects. This reflects the supportive role of faculty in helping students choose appropriate courses at the beginning of their academic journey. Similarly, 81.5% of students stated that they were provided with additional study material besides prescribed textbooks, indicating that departments are proactively supplementing classroom learning with notes, references, and other academic resources.

Student satisfaction regarding elective and generic course options was exceptionally high, with 92.3% expressing that they were satisfied with the choices offered. This shows that the college provides adequate flexibility and variety in elective subjects. Library resources also received positive feedback: 84.4% were satisfied with the availability of newspapers, books, and magazines; though a small proportion felt the need for further enhancement of reading materials.

Teaching methods and adherence to academic schedules were rated highly, with 92.3% of students satisfied with the effectiveness and timely completion of syllabus. This highlights the dedication and planning of faculty members in maintaining academic discipline and ensuring curriculum delivery.

Regarding additional academic support, 63.1% of students reported that they were provided remedial, extra, or special classes along with regular teaching. However, 36.9% felt that such classes were limited or unavailable, indicating scope for strengthening remedial support, especially for slow learners and students requiring extra guidance. Strengthening remedial support for slow learners is essential, but sometimes not possible due to heavy institutional workload and extensive faculty responsibilities.

Laboratory facilities were also positively rated, with 80% of respondents agreeing that the laboratories provide an ideal practical learning environment. This reflects satisfactory infrastructure for hands-on learning in science and technical subjects, though 20% indicated a need for further up gradation of equipment or space.

One of the significant findings emerged in the area of modern teaching and learning tools. While 56.9% students agreed that the institution is equipped with facilities such as internet, smart classrooms, and computers, a considerable 43.1% expressed dissatisfaction. This indicates a pressing need to strengthen ICT infrastructure, improve internet connectivity, and increase the number of smart classrooms to ensure wider access to technology-enabled learning.

According to the student survey, 92.3% of students are satisfied with the manner in which house tests, workshops, and seminars are conducted. They appreciated fair evaluation, well-planned schedules, and interactive sessions. Only 7.7% expressed dissatisfaction, suggesting more workshops, diverse topics, and hands-on activities to improve engagement further.

According to the survey, 95.4% of students feel that they are provided with enough opportunities to participate in co-curricular activities such as quizzes, seminars, group discussions, and workshops. Students appreciated the variety of activities that enhance learning and skills, while a small percentage suggested more frequent and diverse programs.

Overall, the feedback for 2024–25 indicates a high level of student satisfaction in key areas such as academic guidance, teaching processes, syllabus completion, library services, and laboratory facilities. However, specific areas—including remedial classes and modern digital infrastructure—require focused attention for further improvement. Strengthening ICT facilities and ensuring uniform academic support across departments will help enhance the learning environment and elevate the overall student experience at the institution.

The analysis of the family satisfaction survey indicates an overall positive response from the majority of families regarding the institution's performance and support. Most respondents expressed satisfaction with the academic environment, highlighting effective teaching methods, timely feedback, and the availability of resources for student learning. Extracurricular activities and co-curricular support were also rated favorably, suggesting that families value the holistic development opportunities provided by the institution.

Communication between faculty and families appears to be clear and responsive, with parents appreciating regular updates on student progress and institutional activities. However, some minor concerns were noted regarding the adequacy of certain facilities, such as infrastructure and library resources, indicating areas for potential improvement.

The survey also reflects that families perceive the institution as supportive in addressing student challenges, both academic and personal, fostering a nurturing and inclusive environment. Overall, the consolidated data portrays a generally satisfied family base, with confidence in the institution's commitment to student development and well-being. Continuous efforts to enhance infrastructure, resources, and communication are likely to further strengthen family satisfaction and engagement in institutional activities.
